THE LOUISVILLE CONVENTION.

[W. P. Walton's Standard International.]
The Louisville convention at Louisville was a simply attended affair, except by Louisville people, who went out of curiosity. The majority of those who took part are men of whose political prestige is only in the past and who have no future in that line. Many of them are men of intellect, however, but each had a grievance for being turned down from their high place as leaders and prefer to dwell in the tents of wickedness to being a door keeper in the house of the regular Democracy. There was absolutely no reason or excuse for this little convention, except that the "generals" appear to want to get the factions of the party wider apart and put some more Republicans in office. There is no question of the Times' statement that it was an aggregation of brains for there were some massive intellects in the gathering, but their own are using them for a poor purpose. They betrayed the party last year and got snubbed to vote for their dearest ticket. Now they are in the ranks for the sake of the cause, forgetting that it is all the "generals" can do at present. It is simply making a virtue out of a necessity. It is that or nothing. The holding of office and acting as leaders has become a lost art with them.

THE Courier-Journal, in expatiating on the character of the "generals" who are willing to serve in the ranks for the sake of the cause, forgets that it is all the "generals" can do at present. It is simply making a virtue out of a necessity. It is that or nothing. The holding of office and acting as leaders has become a lost art with them.

THE Courier-Journal devoted several pages yesterday to expatiating on the convention and ticking little fellows by publishing interviews with them. But the C.-J. can't not anybody any more. Its word is not taken at the same value once placed upon it.

THE Republican papers are tickling the bolshewicks and calling them the bulls horns with a candle to say. Willford, of Point Lick, who is an egg eater from 'way back. The Lancaster Record says that Willford is not a bad looking fellow and converses freely as to the enormous quantity of stuff he can stow away in his broad basket. He said the biggest job of eating he ever did was near Point Lick several months ago, when he got away with a turkey gobble weighing 19 pounds, 30 soft-boiled eggs, several large onions, a lot of mutton and a loaf of bread. His appetite was not extra good on this day and he could have devoured more had it been at hand. Billy Fish, "Tiger" Jennings and Alex Ely, of Point Lick, have a long list of reputable witnesses by whom they can prove the above statement.

Champion Egg Eater.
Richmond has several soda-water fountains and beer swillers, but no man here can hold a candle to Sen. Willford, of Point Lick, who is an egg eater from 'way back. The Lancaster Record says that Willford is not a bad looking fellow and converses freely as to the enormous quantity of stuff he can stow away in his broad basket. Seen in a Louisville Pawn Shop.
It is a temptation when in a city to examine the articles displayed in the pawn shop windows. Sometimes the engagement ring of a starving wife or the seashell cloak pawned to get whisky for a drunken husband, are the mute witnesses of the desperate straits into which unfortunates fall. Last week in Louisville we spied a superb diamond-studded gold medal, and on it these words: "Oratory, Centre College, 1894." Around this inscription were eight large diamonds, and between them the names of as many states, showing that the owner, whoever he was, had either lost or pawned this handsome trophy of his inter-State oratorical supremacy. A badge of the Sigma Chi fraternity was also on exhibition.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORS ARE EVANGELIZING THE WORLD.

At the great Convention of Christian Endeavors at San Francisco last week, the subject of the annual message of the President, the Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., was "A World Evangelizing Religious Movement; How shall It Fulfill God's Design?"

He said in part:
"I have attended conventions, since last I met you, in the Metropolitan Tabernacle of London, and in the Beals of Bengal; in St. Andrew's Hall of Glasgow; and in the ancient capital of Persia; among our Irish Endeavorers in Belfast, and in crowded Berlin, and on the lonely tablelands of the Transvaal; among the Alps of Switzerland, and on the vast veld of the Orange Free State; in seagirt Stockholm, and in the karoo of South Africa; in London, Paris, and in quiet Wellington; in the Cape of Good Hope, and everywhere, amid all these diversities of custom and costume, of manners and methods, of language and laws, I found that the Christian Endeavor ideal is substantially the same."

"Moreover, the people whom I have seen have been of diverse creeds and views of religious truth. All, to be sure, have acknowledged the supremacy of Jesus Christ as the very Son of God and the only Savior of lost sinners. All have accepted the Bible as the word of God, and the Holy Spirit as the sanctifier, comforter and guide—in such soil only can Christian Endeavor flourish."

"But in minor particulars the creeds and forms of church government of these hospitable hosts of our society differ as widely as their complexions. The shade of color on a man's cheek does not make or unmake his nationality; the shade of creed does not make or unmake his Christianity."

"By Methodists and Baptists, by Presbyterians and Congregationalists, by Friends and disciples of Christ, by Episcopalians and Lutherans, by adherents of the state churches of Germany and Sweden and Holland and Scotland and England, as well as by representatives of every free church, have been kindled the same holy fire, and all have received in the name of Christian Endeavor, and by every missionary work at work in India or Africa. Why? Because of the eloquent endorsement which a common and universal method of Christian service renders to its advocates."

"Only one denomination still seeks to prevent the increase of Christian Endeavor Societies. It has been kindled to every evangelical creed, to every form of church government, and every race and class and language and condition of people. It has failed only where the principles involved in our covenant have been ignored, or where it has been crushed out by denominational authority."

In answering the question of the text he said the movement must be true to its fundamental ideas; must necessarily be unifying; must be pervasive; must be sacrificial, and must listen to God's voice and continually obey it. Continuing he said:
"This is a world movement, thank God, away from materialism, formalism and a barren ecclesiasticism back to God himself."

"Endeavors, let this be the motto, the purpose, the object of this movement, the seventh year. To abide in Christ, to surrender ourselves to Him, to let Him use us, to think less of our efforts and more of His fulness, to seek a larger inflowing from above, deeper draughts of His life, more eagerness of self, more fulness of Christ. Thus only will Christian Endeavor, and all for which it has come to stand—Christian citizenship, Christian missions and a thousand forms of benevolence—receive ever fresh life and vigor."

The man who sits on a limb and saws it off is a Solomon compared to the one who thinks he can sin without having to suffer.—Lancaster Record.

Of Interest to Tobacco Growers.
The "Weed" is the name of a new Louisville paper devoted exclusively to tobacco and news of Kentucky's staple product. S. M. Anderson, Jr., formerly of Nicholasville, is editor and publisher of the paper, and it is ably conducted.
For certain, the largest tobacco-raising state in the Union, and the largest tobacco market in the state should be field enough to support an organ, and we have no doubt from the encouragement already given, that the trade will in time take as much interest in this publication as does its publisher. It will be the aim, through an excellent editorial force and special correspondents in every tobacco center and raising section, to furnish more news and reliable news of tobacco than any journal now entering this field.
Price, 25 per year. Together with CLIMAX $2.75.

Received Letters Regarding the Reproduction of Hart's Masterpiece.

At a meeting of the Hart Memorial Association in Lexington Saturday, the President, Miss Brockbridge, read a number of letters relative to the reproduction of the statue, "Woman Triumphant," from sculptors of note in this country and Europe, all feeling confident that the model can be restored. Among the letters published in the Lexington Herald, is the following from Gen. Cassius M. Gay, of this country:

White Hall, Ky., May 18, 1897.
My Dear Miss S. Brockbridge:
I share the grief of all J. T. Hart's friends in the loss of his great work—the "Triumph of Chastity." The outlines of a new work could be taken on a flat cut from a perfect photograph given me by Hart, but the alto work could only be renewed by a collection of many of the pieces which would allow the measured statue by his invented instrument to be filled up to great extent. If the clay model or a cast from it remains in Italy it would all be well.

I suggested in the beginning that the statue should be placed in a building made for the purpose cheaply—annex of larger proportions to be made in time as the means would allow.
As I had much to do with the conception perfected in this statue, and as my friend proposed to inscribe my name upon it, I bear more than a common grief in its loss.
With great respect,
CASSIUS MARCELLUS CLAY.

TO WALK HALF WAY ROUND THE GLOBE.

"Fred Miller and his dog, Guess, Police Gazette, champion long distance walker. Record, 13,316 miles," appeared on the register at Hotel Nicholas yesterday morning. Miller carries with him a handsome medal presented to him by the Champion long distance walker of America. He left New York April 24 under a wager of $1,000 to walk to El Paso, Texas, and back to New York, a distance of 13,316 miles, by December 1, which he can easily accomplish. Miller and his faithful companion, Guess, paid the Journal a very pleasant call yesterday. His dog has tramped all the way, averaging about 25 miles per day. Miller remained only all day yesterday, leaving late in the evening for Danville.—Jessemine Journal.

There will be a thirty-day race meeting at Hawthorne after Harlem closes.
